MARTINSBURG, W. Va., November 8 .-Judge Jackson of the United States disrict court for this district today issued a EXPLANATORY NOTE: Observations taken at 8 a.m., 75th merklian time. That the act known as the "civil service act" is constitutional.

Origin of the Suit.

It has been customary for years for the internal revenue bureau to rotate and change about its employes, numbering some 2,500 in the entire service whose services are sometimes all needed, when the distilleries are all in operation, and at other times 50 per cent of them are idle. It is claimed that these officers are changed about to prevent collusion and fraud, and for other good reasons, and to give work to as mary as possible.

The withdrawal gauger signed to duty. "Are you married?" asked Attorney duty.

The cases were argued before Judge Jackson on October 18, and the parties seeking to have the injunctions made per-manent took the ground that a transfer of seeking to have the injunctions made "Sure," was the reply, almost hissed, in a manner that an additional "Mike" and assignment could not be made under the civil service rules because it was equiva-lent to a removal, and that the President's order of July 27, 1897, prevents removals "One dollar fine," was all Judge Scott had except for cause. the plaintiffs, ex-Commissioner John W. Mason for the commissioner of internal revenue, and District Attorney Joseph H. Gaines for the collector.
On the question of the bureau to make transfers of its employes, the court says:

"But it is insisted that this is not a removal, but a transfer, and that, under the provisions of section 3154, passed August instead of by weight Thomas Hansborough violated the law and was fined $2. His defense was that his customers insisted on 15, 1876, the commissioner may transfer any gauger or storekeeper. That section provides that 'the commissioner may also transfer any inspector, gauger, storekeeper or storekeeper and gauger, from one distliery or place of duty, or from one collection district, to another. This section is heavy docket, and his rulings seemed to meet with popular favor. From statements made today it is plain that his honor will mandatory and binding upon every officer of the United States who comes within its except when addressing the court, and that policemen will not be permitted to indulge terms, but it does not authorize the appointing power to make the charges pro posed by the defendant collector.

Powers of the Commissioner.

"It is obvious from the reading of that section that it only authorizes the commissioner to transfer the officers mentioned in it from one place of duty to another place of duty in the same district, or from one collection district to another. It does not in express terms say that you may transfer the officers mentioned in it from one position to another in the same distilone position to another in the same distillery. It was evidently the intention of Congress in the enactment of this clause of that section to permit transfers, as I have indicated, but there is no provision for the reducing of a man in the grade or position that he has held.

"The effort to remove these officers seems to be in violation of the executive order of July 27, 1807, amendatory to civil service.

July 27, 1897, amendatory to civil service rule 2, which provides that 'no removal shall be made from any position subject to competitive examination, except for j cause, upon written charges filed with head of the department or other appointing officer, of which the accused shall have full notice and an opportunity to make de

For the Good of the Service.

"Now, it seems to me no grounds have been shown for the removal of these incumbents except for the good of the public service.' This is a reason that was employed by the officers of the government when they desired to remove any one that was obnoxious to them, long prior to the passage of the civil service act. It is too general, vague and indefinite to au-thorize the removal of an officer under existing law. By the very terms and pro-visions of the rule just referred to, he has to be confronted with the charges that are made against him and to have full no "To my mind it is clear that storekeepers and gaugers are employes of the government that are protected by the rules and regulations promulgated under the civil service act by the executive and the commission: that a revocation of the sector. mission; that a revocation of the assign-ments or transfer of the plaintiffs in these actions is in effect a removal, and that a removal for political reasons falls within hibition of the civil service act, and the rules promulgated under it; that there can be no appointment to any position un-less there is a vacancy, and that the va-cancy must be filled in conformity to the provisions of the civil service act and the rules made under it."

Question of Jurisdiction. On the question of the jurisdiction of a court of equity in such a case Judge Parker quoted many decisions of prominent jurists and writers on constitutional law to show that it was the only tribunal which could afford the plaintiffs the remedy they sought.

New York; Carlos H. Brown as Peruvian In conclusion he says:

"I reach the conclusion that the preponderance of evidence is with the plaintiffs, and that neither the gauger nor storekeepers have ever vacated or surrendered their offices or positions; that in contemplation of law they are in the legal custody of their offices and car. only be displaced by proceedings instituted under the executive order of July 27, 1897; that the offices not having been surrendered, and the injunc ing consular officers of the Greater Repubtion being rerved while plaintiffs were in possession, it was effective to prevent the interference of the defendants with the plaintiffs in the possession of their offices.

"I deem it unnecessary to discuss the competency of the plaintiffs for their positions, though the evidence tends strongly to show that they were fully competent, having served in those positions since 1803. SOME TALK OF CLOTURE.

Method Suggestive of Gaining Currency Reform Legislation. In spite of the seeming impossibility that any sort of financial legislation should get through this Congress, some of the bestinformed democrats and silver men in Congress insist in private that there is going The internal revenue department claimed to be a desperate fight over the question, and that the outcome is uncertain. They service and not for political reasons, and exhibit considerable alarm, and declare that there is no doubt that unusual exclosing down, and the varying needs of the pedients will be resorted to to get through the Senate the measure that will be adopted in the House, on the recommendation In the argument of the cases, Senator of the President. They say that the fight Faulkner of West Virginia appeared for will start in the Senate on a proposition to will start in the Senate on a proposition to adopt cloture, almost as soon as Congress meets, and that there are some senators who will support the proposition to amend the Senate rules who could not justify themselves before their constituents if they voted directly to pass the currency reform measure. Yet if cloture is adopted, they believe that it may be possible to put through a currency measure which would be disastrous to the silver party. The republicans are saying nothing of such a plan, and on the surface it does not seem possible of accomplishment, but there is no doubt that those who oppose such legislation are extremely anxious, and are preparing for a desperate struggle, which, they say, may last throughout the Congress.

The republicans have forty-three members of the Senate. There being a va-cancy, forty-five is a majority. The dem-cerats have but thirty-four senators, and there are twelve who are populists or in-dependents. Two democrats, Lindsay and Gray, are likely to vote for a reform of the currency, if they get a chance, though they would probably not vote for cloture. If they did, that would be enough to pass the bill. Now, if some of those who would not dare vote for a currency measure should vote for cloture it would open the way for those who want to referred. should vote for cloture it would open the way for those who want to reform the currency. It is not certain how J. P. Jones or Kyle would vote on the cloture proposition, but it is thought likely that Kyle would vote for it, and it is not improbable that J. P. Jones would.

It is impossible to base on any republican authority an assertion that this plan is in contemplation by them, but there is no question about the democrats believing it and being anxious about it.

POLICE HELLO PLAN

Central Bureau Formally Established Today at Headquarters.

THE OFFICIAL ORDERS PROMULGATED

Three Operators Assigned, Each to Serve Eight Hours.

FIRST MESSAGE RECEIVED

"No dead animals. "No arrests. "Nothing."

This was what Policeman E. L. Phillips said at the police headquarters telephone at noon today. Then he added, "O. K. No. 5," and the central telephone bureau in connection with the police department was formally opened.

Inspector Mattingly will be the officer in charge of the new bureau, for the reason that the telephone is in his room.

This morning the inspector received from Maj. Moore a copy of the order establishing the bureau, which was published in Saturday's Star.

The Operators. Another order received this morning reads "By order of the Commissioners:

"The bureau shall be known as the cen ral telephone bureau. There shall be three operators, who shall serve, alternating first, 8 o'clock a.m. to 4 o'clock p.m.; sec ond, 4 o'clock a.m. to 12 o'clock p.m.; third, 12 o'clock p.m. to 8 o'clock a.m. "The operator on duty shall remain in his office constantly, to send all messages ordered telephoned by the major and super-intendent or his authorized representative, and to receive all communications from the several precinct stations, other institutions and the public when 'police business.'

"In sending messages they shall be handed to the operator in writing, and he shall receive all messages in writing to enable him to correctly record the same. All police messages of whatsoever nature or kind shall be recorded in the telephone book as promptly as relief from the instru-ment will permit, and each operator shall have messages received by him entered upon the records before being relieved by Must Report in Detail.

"The several police lieutenants shall see to it that all arrests and reported violations of the law, accidents, fires, and, in fact, everything that transpires in their respective precincts of a public or police interest, are telephoned to the central bureau promptly, and they have been so instructed in general orders.

"Where the ends of justice demand 'privacy,' the sender of messages shall so state and record at the station 'private.' The receiver at the central bureau shall likewise mark such messages, when received, 'private.' 'private.' "The operators shall communicate all dispatches in writing to the major and super-intendent or his authorized representative after having recorded the same, who shall furnish all information to the press and public under conditions already provided, and every facility shall be extended by the major and superintendent or his author-ized representative for obtaining any details through the central bureau for the press, but it will not be necessary to record such questions as to details.

"Operators shall report in writing all dead animals the locations of which have been telephoned them, noting from where such reports come, to the major and superintendent or his authorized representa-tive at 9 o'clock a.m. and 1:30 o'clock p.m." Maj. Moore's Instructions. Major Moore also issued the following general order instructions concerning the above order: "Commencing Monday, the 8th day of November, 1897, at 12 o'clock m., there will be inaugurated at police headquarters central telephone bureau erators, alternating eight hours each, in attendance. Lieutenants of the several precincts will instruct their stationkeepers, beginning on that day and at that hour, to telephone to the central bureau every item of police information of which they make a record, either in the biotter or on make a record, either in the blotter or on the record of arrests. This information will be telephoned by the stationkeepers promptly on its receipt, they being careful in sending proper names, locations, time and descriptions, in all cases requiring the operator at headquarters to operator at headquarters to repeat the message so sent, and in receiving messages from police headquarters the stationkeep-ers will repeat to the operator at the cen-tral bureau this in order to secure accuracy.

"By every item is intended names of all persons arrested with description and offense charged, location of dead apimals, dangerous holes, broken pavements, fires, accidents, etc., and, in fact, everything that becomes a matter of record at the stations and which pertains to the public welfare

Confidential Information.

"Where information is of a confidential nature, in making entries at the stations the stationkeepers will mark the same private, and in sending the message will so state to the operator at the central bureau, it being the purpose to avoid giving publicity to anything whereby embar-rassment might follow to the department or the ends of justice be defeated.

"The sending of these dispatches to the central bureau is not intended to relieve the stationkeepers in any way of making the usual morning reports now returned to headquarters at the end of every twentyfour hours.

"In sending messages stationkeepers shall reduce the same to writing, so that the record made in each station house will correspond in every particular with the message received by the central bureau. Police as Central Operators. Policemen E. L. Phillips, William H.

Amiss and S. H. Murphy have been designated as operators. Operator Phillips has been serving at headquarters for some time, and he was the first of the three operators to go on duty. Twenty minutes after the system was inaugurated, and No. 5 had announced that it had no report to make, the Georgetown precinct sent a message that there was a dead calf at No. 1673 32d street, and at the same time a message was received giv-ing the information that Bud Reese had been locked up in South Washington for intoxication.

Some of the Reports Received. From the ninth precinct came a report of the finding of a dead infant in a sewer near Delaware avenue and M street northeast. George Turner, who was employed to clean the sewer, found the body and turned it over to the police.

Among reports of minor importance were notices of dangerous holes in sidewalks and a fight in Shucker's alley.

CONDENSED LOCALS.

William Tompkins, a Philadelphian and an oyster dredger, called at police head-quarters today and asked for assistance. He was furnished transportation home by Sanitary Officer Frank.

Mr. Floyd Davis discovered fire at No. 420 7th street southwest last night, about 7:45 o'clock, in a grocery store owned by S. L. Pitznogle. It is supposed that the blaze was started by some rats gnawing at a box of matches. It was extinguished by citizens. A summons to the fire department failed by reason of the signal box being defective. The damage to the stock amounted to only a few dollars.

George Eislerbonn, thirteen years old, was thrown from a horse near the corner of 7th and A streets northeast yesterday afternoon and painfully injured. He was taken to Providence Hospital for treatment. The boy lives at No. 8 18th street scutheast Foliceman John Stewart of the fifth pre-cinct found the dead body of an infant on the river shore near the foot of 15th street yesterday. The body was sent to the fifth precinct station. Another dead body was found near North Capitol and Quincy streets yesterday afternoon. This body was removed to the eighth precinct
